

"... and I remember my youth and the feeling that will never come back anymore--the feeling that I could last for ever, outlast the sea, the earth, and all men; ..."
— Conrad's "Youth"

Everyday we are witness to children at play, this is youth; a teenage couple walking slowly hand in hand down a crowded street, this is youth; we may hear of a young man who gambled his life to save that of a younger child--being successful, yet loosing, this is youth; we may hear of a teenager in trouble--this too is a part of youth, today's youth. We are this youth and we too will find that this magical part of our lives is only too brief.

Youth is a time of learning, of imagination, of knowledge and of love. A time for one to find himself: what he is; what he could be! It is also a time when he demands respect, patience, recognition and understanding; in return he gives much: his new hopes, strength, vitality--his whole being!

This fifty-third edition of Ad Astra is dedicated to youth, because youth is life, and life is existence, and the existence of the future world depends on the youth of forever!

YOUTH

Meet

"Alphie"
Astra

"Procrastination is the thief of time." Young

"Le temps fuit, et nous traîne avec soi." Boileau

The dictionary defines "time" as "duration", or "continued existence". Man has invented many instruments to record the passage of time--the hour glass with its grains of sand, the sun dial, the ticking clock, the modern computers as they wait to send man into space. But what good are these marvellous records of time if we mortals continue to waste the precious hours which God has allotted us?

As a principal of a large secondary school I receive many visitors into my office. One of the most common complaints reverberating in my ears is the sad story of adults and youths:

"Sir, if only I hadn't wasted my time in school. I need more education. Can you help me?"

All of us must carefully budget out time. Above all, students cannot afford to squander one minute of their time. Are you apportioning time for study, time for physical fitness, or are you just wasting your time?

And now I would like to take time to thank once again the staff of the Ad Astra for the hours of preparation for Yearbook, 1968. Their labours have not been in vain.

Editorial

My editorial is written especially to those who are in grade nine now or to those who will be entering S.C.I.&T.S. in the fall. I am writing to tell you a little more about this school than you may already know.

S.C.I.&T.S. is more than just a school, a place to come and learn the usual subjects normally taught in high school. To many of us, S.C.I.&T.S. has been like a second home, for its doors are always open to us and its facilities are there simply for our use. Some of you may not see this now, but you will in time.

I'm sure there have been times when you did poorly on an exam or didn't make that basket at a noon hour game. You are certain that the whole world is against you. But you're wrong. During that tiring examination someone was with you, hoping you'd do well, and throughout that game someone was running beside you the full length of the court. That someone is your school. When the chips are down its age-old grace and determination help you to hold your head high and try harder the next time.

The same holds true for the teachers. Locked within that outer shell of "heartless dictatorship" is knowledge, ability, and lasting friendship, all of which will not be administered unless you, the pupils, make an honest effort to learn.

In short, be true to your school. Keep up its fine spirit and respect its rules. But most of all, keep S.C.I.&T.S. what it already is — THE BEST!

Valedictory Address

"Mr. Saunders, members of the staff, fellow graduates, ladies and gentlemen: Why high school graduation is also called Commencement has probably puzzled every student since the tradition began. Commencement of what? I believe the best answer is commencement of education. Tonight must not be the end point, but the beginning point for all of us. We now have an infinite number of directions in which to extend our knowledge and the further we extend it, the fuller our lives will be.

The instruction we received at S.C.I.&T.S. is called formal education and does not apply directly to life afterwards. A formal education merely supplies the tools the student needs to begin his more important self-education. Whether a person attends university or nursing school, goes out to work or marries after high school he needs to use these tools to learn about life. A high school graduate knows so little about it.

The common student complaint that what he is supposed to learn will not help him in life is often valid. The things he learns from his parents and in clubs and sports are more important for that. But in secondary school today the material learned is not nearly as important as the abilities developed while learning it. These include the ability to think logically, to make judgments, and to learn. It is not the material but the abilities themselves which are of great use in life. And a major chunk of life, I think, has to be self-education achieved through learned reading and discussion. Self-education begins after high school. Even in university most of what we learn, high school education is, the better equipped we are to teach ourselves.

George Bernard Shaw once said, "He who can does. He who cannot teaches." I think his meaning in those few words is very clear and by no means complimentary to the teaching profession. I also think he is wrong. Teachers are the basis of all formal education which is probably the most important concern of the world today. Teaching is also one of the most challenging occupations. It was from the teachers here at S.C.I. and T.S. that we graduates received both our practical learning from clubs and sports and the education so vital to our future. The results from Toronto show that they guided us through this education very well. Our students have done better in this centennial year than in many previous years. Thus on behalf of all the graduates here tonight I would like to say to all the teachers at SCITS, thank you, our appreciation now is only a particle of what it will be in the future."

ACTIVITIES

Clubs Editorial

School clubs should play an important part in the school life of every student; here at SCITS, we feel they do. This year there are no club write-ups because most club titles indicate the very nature of its activity. The various clubs are represented by a picture of its executive and advisor. Should you want more information about a particular organization, you need only speak to one of these persons.

This year we welcome the birth of a Girls' Archery Club, a Girls' Rifle Team, and the re-birth of the Boys' Curling Team, the Drama, and Booster Clubs.

Much credit must be given to the club executives and staff advisors who make the following activities a success each year.

Musical Notes

Room 116, that 'little' music room tucked away in the south-west corner of your school, has been a busy, busy place so far this year and is going to become more so during the month of April.

Up to now, the members of the Senior and Intermediate bands have conducted two very successful projects: the sale of Halloween candies and a school dance, to raise enough money to make our annual out-of town exchange trip with another school band. This year we are having an exchange visit with Welland Eastdale Secondary School and our concert will be held in our auditorium the evening of April 1st. April is also the month we perform concerts in Sarnia's public schools. May brings the Lambton County Music Festival our way and to date there are 24 music students entered in the solo classes and the Senior Band will be entering the school class to defend the first position won last year.

We have three performing groups this year and they are: The Senior Band (63 members), the Intermediate Band (50 members), and the new Stage Band consisting of 13 members.

Mr. D. Jolley (Music Dept)

OH CANADA

Awkward giantess
In a world which demands dexterity.
Youth, is her strength,
and her weakness,
She stands bewildered,
At the entrance of adulthood.

Oh Canada,
Forget your mother,
who would restrain you;
Ignore your sister,
who would own you;
Stand independent;
For too many people
Love you.

KEEP THE FAITH

In times of trial, I am lost and groping,
Forget my faith, abandon all hoping;
Then from my gloom, renewed, emerge
Reflecting on my father's words:
Trust in the Lord, and keep your bowels open.

APRIL NIGHT

Diamond stars-
are set in dark blue satin sky, fringed by a lace of bare black branches.

I walk-
with my thoughts,
penetrated by the cold,

In the-now past winter....
not yet summer....

April Night.

TO SLEEP... TO DIE...

The sun hung suspended,
A massive blur of fire
In the blue sky.
Below, a solitary figure
Lay prostrate,
On the scorched sands
Of the desert.
The heat encompassed him
Like a shroud.
It was in him
It was in everything he touched.
He passed a swollen tongue
Over cracked lips.
He tried to reach out
For something,
Perhaps life itself.
He clutched only
A handful of sand.

The darkness was complete.
The winds screamed,
Whipping the loose snows
Around the body of a man
Lying near death
On the frozed arctic wastes,
Curled in fetal position.
In his hand he held
A fistful of snow.
The vast expanse of frozen tundra
Lay for hundreds of miles
Around him.
In his mind
Was the desert,
And the unbearable heat.

The man--shallow
But content,
As a new born baby
Is content
To stare into the darkness,
Neither
Wondering or caring
If--when--how Light will Appear
Nor
Setting--striving--achieving
A goal,
Allowing the world
To pass him
By,
Asking no questions
Expecting no answers
Apathetic; he cares not;
Living
In his ruled,
Nine by five,
Black and white,
Granted
Existence
Where
Unconcerned--unaffected--unrealistic
While:
Another Berkeley youth has blown his mind and future with LSD
Ho Chi Minh has denied further peace talks in Hanoi
Red China has demanded foreign recognition
Two hundred forty-five Viet Cong were killed in a skirmish in the Mekong Delta
A national report has unconditionally stated that they are losing ground in the war on poverty
More lenient laws on abortion and homosexuality are sought
Effects of the British pound devaluation are still being felt in world trade and
Charles has just finished chanting "Free Quebec".
He
Asks no questions
Expects no answers
Apathetic; he cares not.

SWEET DEATH

She knelt
Hands together in silent prayer;
Eyes swollen
Her expression, such despair!
She grieved
The passing of her mate;
Gone forever
Her, to invigorate
--The Praying Mantis.

Wm Clyde Houston 11-D

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep,
If I should die before I wake,
I have but four requests to make:
Lay my English at my chest,
Tell Mr. Arthurs I tried my best;
Lay my science near my head,
Tell Mr. B. I died in bed;
Lay my history at my feet,
Tell Mr. Clark it had me beat;
Lay my math book at my side,
Tell Mr. Hazzard I'm glad I died!

AS ONE

Space
Is a pitiless eternity.
It had no beginning,
Assuredly,
It will have no end.
And I see in it
An image of myself
And those about me.
No!
It terrifies me.
For I realize, I form
A part of this axis
Which supports
A great nothingness.
And so ...
This nothingness
Is a part of me.
And I cannot feel,
For I am completely empty.
Life
Holds no emotion.
I am completely devoid
Of all response
Yet, I no longer care,
For I am part
Of eternity.
And eternity
Makes no promises.
It cannot hurt me,
And I find solace
In its desolation.
We become
As one.

ODE TO MY TEACHER
(Apologies to the 23rd Psalm)

He is my teacher, I shall not pass,
He maketh me go to the board, he compelleth me to draw difficult triangles.
He giveth me zero. He maketh me sit down for my class' sake.
Yea! though I study till midnight, I gain no knowledge,
for my problem sorely bothers me.
He preparest for me in the presence of my classmates,
He giveth me D.
Surely flunks shall follow me all the days of my life
And I shall dwell in the Geometry class forever.

Prose

THEREFORE FAREWELL

She fell back terrified as she opened the door, and saw her uninvited caller. Drawing in her breath and stepping backwards, she fought to hide her inward terror. Her mysterious visitor was dark complected, tall and slender in stature with what appeared to be overly long hairy appendages. His face bore deep pockmarks which his golden brown tan seemed to emphasize. His unkept goatee lent an air of viciousness to his expression, and his glassy black eyes were so protruded as to suggest some mysterious inward force attempting to thrust them from their sockets. His ugly features and frightening guttural sounds filled her with terror beyond description. She slammed the door shut, but not before her unwelcome guest darted into the room. She ran into the next room, only to be pursued by her vicious attacker. Stumbling over a coffee table, she fell to the floor. He zoomed through the air and landed on her head. With flailing arms she managed to push him aside long enough to jump to her feet. The chase was on; in and out of rooms, over, under and around the furnishings, running, stumbling and crawling, shrieking and panting. Her perspiration-covered body trembling, and her exhaustion all but complete, she rallied her remaining strength for one final attempt at escape. She dashed down the long hallway into the vestibule, and placed her hand firmly on the door knob. Her pursuer, apparently not tired from his escapades, followed her down the hallway with the speed of a well-rested cheetah. As he entered the vestibule she mustered her courage and with all the dignity of a great Shakespearian actress, she opened the door, saying, "Out damned fly! Out, I say!"

SIGNIFICANCE OF COLOUR IN NATURE

White is a pure colour. It inspires thoughts of miles upon miles of fleecy clouds that you may see on the snowy summit of a mountain. Reach out and gather them in your arms as you glide like a dove to the roof of the world. Your mind is tranquil. Throughout the world there is peace. Then sounds the battle cry of guns, the desperate cry of men fighting for their lives, and the heart-breaking cry of a woman clinging to her dead son. War is black. Black is a sad colour. It represents death and sorrow. Within the black smoke-filled sky we see and feel destruction.

As there is hatred in war there is love in peace. Some see red as a pool of blood where lies a poor lad who saw red as love. Love is the basis of humanity. No one can survive without love. It must be everywhere at all times, but sometimes love is hard to find. It is hidden by the dark shades of grey.

As the dark of night gives way the morning light breaks through. The golden sun sends precious rays to clothe the earth in new colours. A carpet of green extends for miles through the valley. It is life. It gives life. A trickle of sparkling blue winds through the green. This is the fountain of life. With the blue the green becomes changed. The fields become gold when the harvest is ripe. This will help to feed the world in the days to come.

The days pass quickly and soon the cruel weather sets in. The valley, once green, is now brown. It is not dead; it only sleeps protected by a blanket of white. White is a pure colour.

MY FIRST FLIGHT

Suspended in mid air, I reached out trying to grasp the closest object available but as I stretched, my arm pulled and wrenched violently until I ceased to have any measure of control over it. Behind me a mist developed and stepping out of this haze a brigadier approached, slashing in all directions with a glazed cutlass. While desperately trying to retract my arm, I watched the clear chrome edge of steel strike closer and closer. Feeling a rush of air skim over my flesh I screamed frightfully. Minutes passed. When I eventually mustered the courage to re-open my eyes, all was pitch black. In the distance I was able to hear the faint wail of a child. As I carefully walked down the corridor of an imposing tunnel, I tried to detect any possible clues as to my location or destination. Approximately one hundred yards ahead there was a trace of daylight. Continuing on my trek I came to the tunnel's end, whereupon the once distant wailing had progressed to a deafening siren. Exiting from my past abode, I was greeted by a blinding ray of light. Shielding my eyes I groped for the tunnel entrance, hoping to escape but to no avail. It mattered not what direction I sought. Hesitatingly at first, an unknown element prodded for forward, until my loping turned to a frantic gallop. Unable to view my pathway, I fell over and thudded into several objects without halting. Eventually I was hurled forward at so great a rate that it rendered me incapable of retaining my balance, and I felt myself falling to the ground. Trying to move, I felt confused, as if my entire mind and soul were encased in a thick fog. Managing to sit up and adjust my position I saw a lush green meadow behind me. To the east a jet was descending rapidly while in the western area of the lea an Egyptian pharaoh was dipping his hand in a finger bowl constructed from a human skull. In his other hand he held a stein with blood spilling over the brim. My attention was divided between the jet, pivoting steadily to the ground, and the pharaoh, presently dining on a succulent roast of arm. Perspiring profusely I awaited the dreadful explosion destined to occur with the collision of jet and earth. To my amazement a minute borough in the field began to separate and expand. This ripple of earth enlarged until the division allowed the jet to enter and disappear from view. Afterwards, the crack slowly formed together and it became virtually impossible to detect. My thoughts ambling back to the pharaoh, I jerked my head westward, only to view a caravan of dromedaries travelling toward the now-setting sun. With the arrival of nighttime, there came also a cool evening wind. Becoming drowsy, I decided to lie down in the meadow and rest until morning. Waking up after what seemed to be hours, I rose from the floor and stumbled into the bathroom. Taking a glass from the medicine chest, I proceeded to wash out the remains of sweet taste left in my mouth.

WE PASS BUT ONCE

I shall pass through this world but once. Any kindness I can show to any human being let me do it now dear God. Let me not defer nor neglect it for I shall not pass this way again.

I don't know who said that quotation, perhaps it doesn't matter now. What does matter is what it means. It is really saying that people count; that people mean something even in a world where they can be destroyed. That it's important to smile at an Italian who can't speak your language, to say 'hello' to the old man across the street who can't even hear you, and to talk with the person that hasn't any friends.

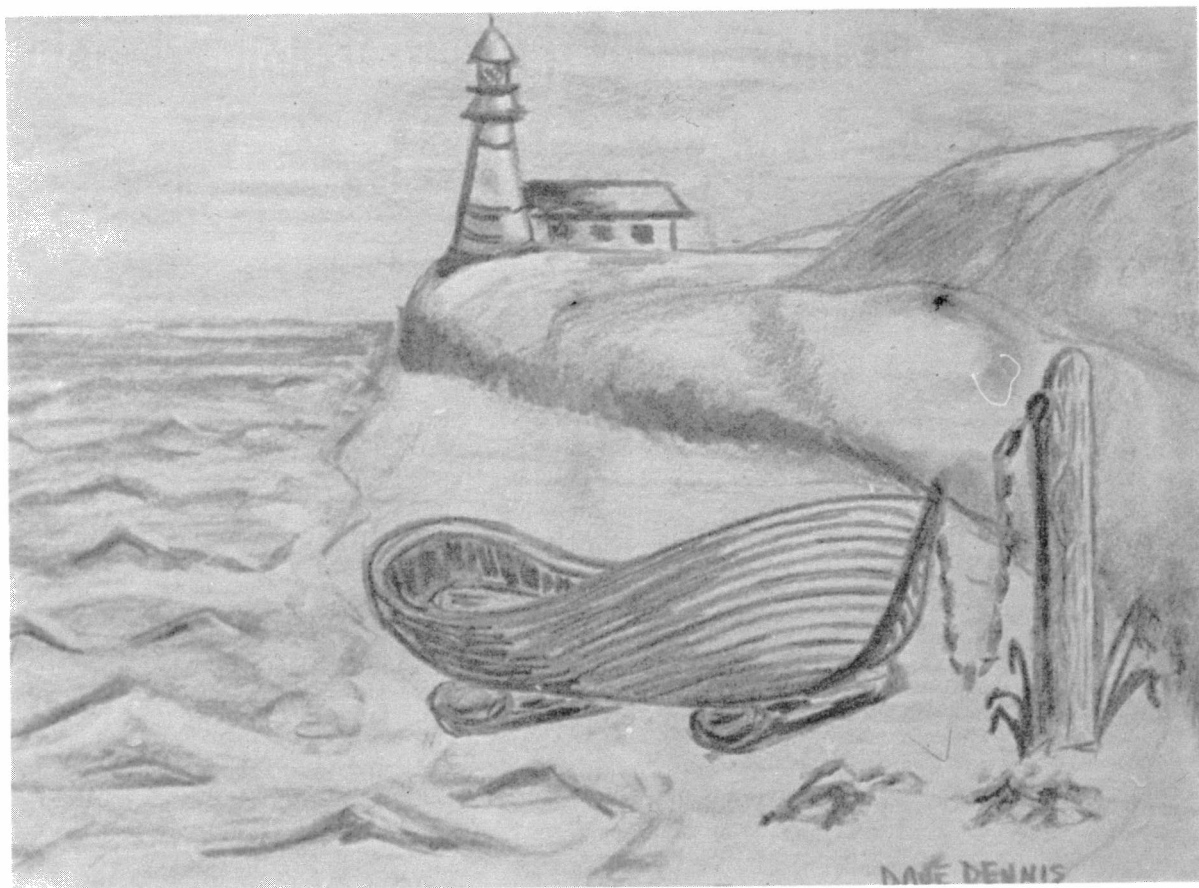

Seldom do people realize how many of their fellow humans are lonesome or unhappy. It has been said "It's the better things that count." Those of you who ride the buses, think how many times you've laughed at some remark made at the driver because 'he drives a bus'. When is the last time you've laughed at some joke about 'Wops' or 'Pollocks' never thinking a person of this nationality might be standing right beside you.

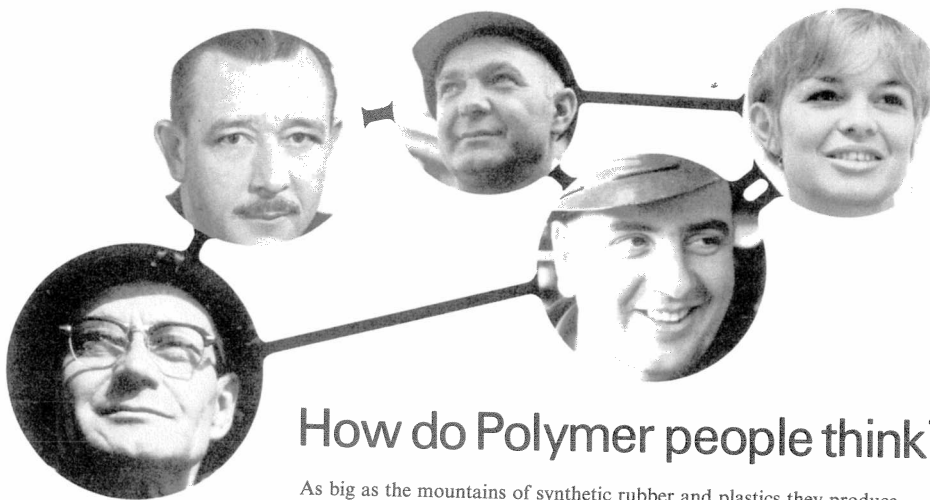

Being kind to people can be practised every day along the highway of life. What you do or say doesn't need to be great, just remember to do it with a smile. Loving you're fellow man does not hinder you, but help you, for as someone once said;

Life is an echo, it all comes back,
The good, the bad, and the true,
So give to the world the best you have
And the best will come back to you.

Posture Queen Contest

The G.A.A. Posture Contest was highly organized and a great success. It began Friday, February 16 and the Queen, Gail Ylitalo, was crowned one week later at an impressive assembly which took on a formal air - the finalists each had a handsome escort; a shining new crown was carried on an elegant blue cushion; last year's Queen, Sandra Connelly, presented the crown to the new Queen; the lights were dimmed and a spotlight centered as Pat Brimley, curator of the contest, announced the winner; the band played 'Pomp and Circumstance' amid thunderous applause.

Student Demonstration In Sarnia Calls For SCITS Gymn

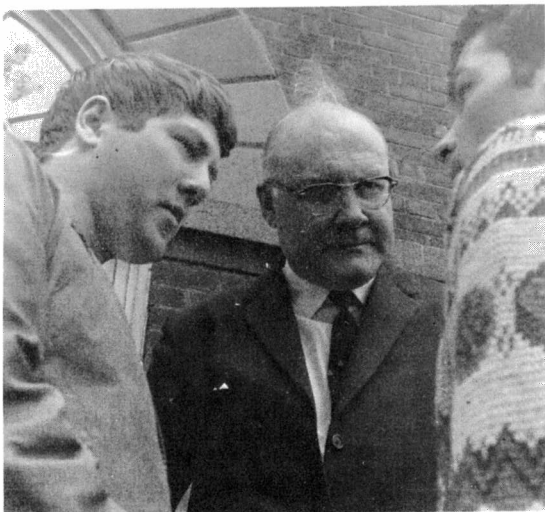

Student Marchers From SCITS Walk Up and Down For Gym

SCITS students parade from School to City Hall, B of E offices

ACTION sets off yell as Board offices open

CONFERENCE with Demonstration leaders takes place on steps

By: JACK FULLERTON

To a cadence chant of "We want a gym" more than 350 SCITS students marched downtown to city hall, back to the Board of Education administration offices and then back to school. What they accomplished if anything, is yet to be determined.

The demonstration, which the students claimed was "spontaneous and unorganized" was in reality a well planned affair. Word of the event was spread well in advance. (Director of Education Bill Rogers received two phone calls announcing the event almost four days in advance of the parade).

The students under the direction of Rick Brown, Robert

Baldwin and Robert Santavy were orderly and well behaved throughout the hour long demonstration. Under questioning as to where they got the information that the gymnasium addition was not definitely going to be built at SCITS several students replied, "From the teachers."

Principal of SCITS John Saunders who has been vocal in his demand that the new gym be built at SCITS and has buttonholed members of the Board of Education on several occasions to present his case in strong language did not, according to the students forbid the march. He told them he appreciated their school spirit and their help in efforts to get the new gyms at SCITS but requested that they return to their classes and forego the proposed march. The students ignored his words and took to the sidewalk.

They were extremely incoherent in exactly how they thought their march would effect any decision. Many of them regarded the affair as a lark, a half holiday from school.

At city hall they were shooed off the city hall plaza by the police while there three spokesmen met with Maurice Engels, assistant city manager who passed the buck back to the Board of Education. He neglected to tell the students that the city had on file a letter from city council to the Board of Education asking the Board not to consider building the SCITS additional gyms this year.

Marching to the Board offices the students chanted their "We want a gym" and brandished signs reading "We want a gym not a broom closet" until Mr. Rogers appeared. Up out of a sick bed (he was stricken with a cold and laryngitis) Mr. Rogers told Bob Baldwin that he could not talk loud enough for the crowd which had dwindled to some 175 by this time to hear him. He invited the three delegates up to the Board room and arranged for a press conference to follow with them and Board Chairman Grant Taylor providing the crowd leaders asked the students to return to their classrooms in an orderly manner. They did.

At the press conference Board Chairman Grant Taylor told the student delegation that no final decision had been made and none would be made until the matter of provincial building grants was finalized. He told the representatives that their mob march had brought disrespect on the Sarnia school system. "There is a proper way to present a grievance and this is not it."

The students left the meeting expressing discontent with the results. "He shot meaningless figures at us," one of them claimed.

The students have written Board planning and building chairman Reverend George Young asking him to appear at a SCITS assembly to explain the situation. It is understood that Mr. Young will decline the invitation.

A delegation from the students may attend this Monday's meeting of the Board.

SCITS seniors win WOSSA 'AA' title

Basketball NEWS Special

Special NEWS

By PETE CUNNINGHAM
of The Free Press

TILLSONBURG — North Middlesex of Parkhill doesn't compete in WOSSA "AA" basketball but it played a big role in determining the senior championship here Saturday.

Sarnia Collegiate Institute and Technical School broke a halftime tie with 19 points in the third quarter then held off Tillsonburg Glendale Griffins in the final quarter for a 33-49 victory and its first WOSSA championship.

Ironically, it was a recent loss to North Middlesex, an "A" school, that fired up the Blue Bombers.

"We had a so-so season," said coach Earl Kilner whose Blue Bombers won the Sarnia title with an 8-2 record.

But the turning point came last week.

"We played Parkhill in an exhibition game last week on our own court and lost. They're an "A" school and it really shook our team up."

It must have been what the Bombers needed.

They played inspired basketball to beat London Central 49-45 and Stratford Central 54-44 to reach the final.

With the score tied 23-23 in the final, the Bombers came out shooting at the start of the third quarter. Co-captain Tom Mattingly hit a jump shot after only five seconds and Tom Thomson scored from the top of the key 30 seconds later.

John Byrnes of Tillsonburg sank a free throw but SCITS roared back with eight straight points on field goals by Mattingly, Thomson and two by Don Hart, all in two minutes and 20 seconds.

It gave the Bombers an 11-point lead. They then went into a controlled offence at the start of the fourth quarter and lengthened their lead to 18 points, 49-31.

Brian MacFarlane scored on a free throw then hit two consecutive baskets, both while Tillsonburg was pressing. Hart also scored off the press.

Despite the deficit and with only five minutes remaining, Glendale wasn't about to give up.

The Griffins outscored SCITS 10-1 to cut the margin to one point. Mattingly scored from close in but the Griffins made two more. Then, trailing by seven points with 55 seconds to go, Byrnes stole the ball. The Griffins had four shots in a row but couldn't find the target and the Bombers took over.

The Griffins added four more points in the final 10 seconds but by then the game had been lost.

It was a disappointing loss for Glendale which had to go all out to beat Beck 72-59 in the afternoon semi-final. The Griffins won that game in the second quarter when they held the Spartans scoreless from the floor, allowing them only six free throws.

The word in the SCITS dressing room before the final game was — stop Coulthard or else.

Kilner played man-to-man on Tillsonburg's Chris Coulthard with Hart doing the chasing. The rest of the SCITS team played a zone defence. Both were effective.

The Griffins had trouble getting the ball inside to their two big men, John Foris and Gary Ghent. Coulthard and Byrnes, the Griffins outside shooters, were forced to take long shots and as a result their shooting percentages were down.

Coulthard, one of the finest players to compete in WOSSA in several years, led the Griffins with 15 points. Ghent added 11.

Hart scored 19 and Thomson 14 for SCITS.

NOTES — Hart was the leading scorer with 67 points in three games. Coulthard had 58 . . . Ben Murray and Sparky Luscombe of St. Thomas refereed the senior final. It was the first time in 33 years of officiating basketball that Murray had worked a WOSSA final . . . Convener Brian O'Rourke of Tillsonburg drew praise for the well organized tournament . . . SCITS will face Markham in the opening round of the Ontario "AA" playoffs Wednesday at Toronto's Monarch Park.

The cheer "we're number one" went up in the SCITS dressing room after they won the WOSSA

"AA" senior basketball championship for the first time Saturday.
